

NOJO/Market Updates + Artist Resources

1 message

The New Orleans Jazz Orchestra
Reply-To: The New Orleans Jazz Orchestra
To:

Wed, Mar 18, 2020 at 10:33 AM

Dear Friends,

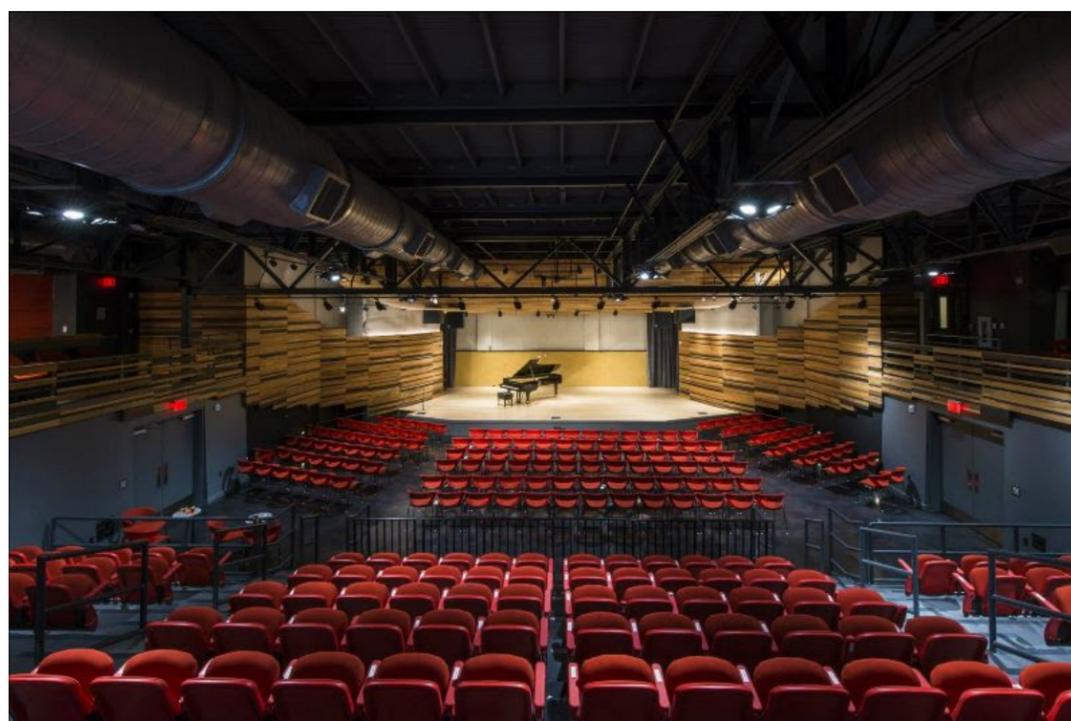

Many in our community are vulnerable during times of crisis. Please remember that this is a time to stay in contact with one-another and to share resources for relief and assistance to those who could use them.

In our effort to flatten the curve in the spread of COVID-19, The New Orleans Jazz Market has postponed all NOJO concerts through March and April 2020. We have placed our musical education programming on hold until further notice. The Wednesday Night Jam Sessions are on hold as well.

As we approach May 2020, we will assess our ability to re-open the Jazz Market and we will send updates as new information is available.

We know music has the power to bring us together and to offer companionship and connection. NOJO will be ready to get back on stage and on the road as soon as possible. Thank you.

-Team NOJO

Resources for Artists

It is essential for independent artists to have access to financial and medical support. Here is a list of relief resources. If you are interested in supporting the artist community, you should also find these resources helpful.

Creative Capital - List of Arts Resources During the COVID-19 Outbreak

National Performance Network - COVID-19/Coronavirus Resources

Americans for the Arts - Research & Response Center

For a regularly updated list of artist resources, please visit our website thenojo.com.

Directly Help NOJO Band Members

The Board and Staff of The New Orleans Jazz Orchestra and Market ask fans and friends of NOJO to please consider making a donation to the NOJO Relief Fund. 100% of donations will go directly to the band and our sound engineer.

NOJO Relief Fund - Click to Donate!