Abstract: This video shares what life before COVID was like and how things are different now, sometimes for good and sometimes for bad.

Interviewee 0:04

My name is [REDACTED] and I live in Long Island, New York.

Interviewer 0:08

Before COVID, what would you say an average day was like for you?

Interviewee 0:14

Waking up, going to school, and then going to my after-school program, S.T.R.O.N.G.

Interviewer 0:22

What is it like now?

Interviewee 0:24

Staying home most of the time. And then, that's it.

Interviewer 0:29

What have you been doing to occupy time, to help others, or to make sense of your new daily life?

Interviewee 0:36

Cleaning, watching TV, going to the park, and hanging out with my family.

Interviewer 0:42

How has the pandemic affected the groups that you are a part of?

Interviewee 0:45

COVID affected the groups I'm a part of, because my S.T.R.O.N.G. program lost their funding.

Interviewer 0:52

What word would you use to describe your feeling at the beginning of the pandemic and now?

Interviewee 0:59

First, I was scared, now, I'm okay.
