Journal of the Plague Year Internship

Are you in the military or have military associations? Have you experienced the fear or annoyance of changed orders, cancelled schools and constantly updated base regulations? If so then we invite you to share your military Covid-19 experience to the Journal of the Plague Year archive! We are working on a collection within the archive based on the military perspective/experience of the Covid-19 pandemic. The Journal of a Plague Year archive is a crowd-sourced archive which means we need YOU and your experiences to fill it. We want to represent how the Pandemic has added to the regular military shenanigans that occur and hear your personal experiences. We invite anyone with a military affiliation to submit materials to the archive because Your stories and experiences DO matter! This call allows military members and their families to be represented in an accurate way for future generations. In order to submit items to the archive one merely has to go to the Journal of a Plague year website linked below and click on the Share your story tab! The archive accepts many forms of submissions including videos, writings, pictures and even memes! Be sure to put #military in your submission so it goes into the proper collection. If you have any questions or need help with contributing to the archive feel free to contact me via email at aewalke4@asu.edu
