

Living through the COVID-19:

Saturday 05/09/20:

Me and my best friend had planned this day as an official meet-up. My best friend wants to have a small party celebrating her 20th birthday. She has actually never had a birthday party before. It's funny how inconvenient her luck can be because last year 2019, we had work and it was a rough shift. That night we ended up leaving at 4 am close to 5 am. Around 3 am the dishes didn't seem to disappear anytime soon and honestly it wasn't the best experience. It's true that we were getting paid but our body were so tired. Yeah, her birthday last year was no fun at all. So, this year she wants to something even if it's something small. We will be hosting the party at my house and it will be in the attic. It is quite spacious and the space was actually used as a studio. In the meantime, the space is available and with my parent's permission we were able to use the space for the party. Basically, today we planned to go shopping and buy decorations and snacks.

She had a shift at target from 8-12 pm and planned to go shopping after her shift. I woke up a bit late it was 11:37 am and quickly texted her to let me know when she's ready. My body obviously quite tired from the night before decided it was best to take a small nap till 11:45 am. I found it weird of not receiving a response back. So, I quickly got up and started getting ready. Still no response and continued getting ready I even managed to a full make-up look. Finally, a response and her shift was running a little longer than planned. It's ok, the day was still long and being an hour behind shouldn't be so bad. The plan was for her to check out the space and plan how to decorate it. We also had to check out our resources we had so we can make a list of what is left to get. We wanted to set up half of the things today so, we wouldn't have to worry too much about it later. That was a great idea because setting things up in the attic was quite tiresome.

The places we had planned to visit was Dollar tree, Target, and Walmart. We only got to Dollar tree and Walmart and thought it was great to call it a day. So, we actually headed back at my place to drop the things in the attic. We got to chill a bit and have quick study date. It was getting quite late and had to part ways soon. What I found interesting today was our trip to Walmart. Today was a rainy day and there was an actual line to get in. I've heard that they wouldn't allow you in if you didn't have a mask on. So, I made sure that everyone that was with me to have one on with them. To my surprise there was a handful of individuals who did have a mask on. But considering the amount of people inside the store it is a good call for us to wear our masks. Ever since the quarantine has begun, I haven't really gone out to many places. None other than going to work and I was only aware of what my workplace was doing during Covid-19. Today making a quick visit to Walmart mad me curious to check out what Walmart was doing to act upon Covid-19.

Smith, Dacona., "Changes to Our Shopping Process to Encourage Social Distancing." Corporate, corporate.walmart.com/newsroom/2020/04/03/changes-to-our-shopping-process-to-encourage-social-distancing.